

Embedding Risk Management: Training Workshops

What is it?

This IRM accredited course is the next step for Risk Practitioners who know the process of risk management. You understand what it's all about, but you need to embrace further skills to help you get risk management accepted and embedded as part of the business culture in the organisation.

How do you approach the training?

We deliver the training during a two day (normally residential) interactive course.

Much of what we cover in the course deserves a great deal longer than we can cater for on a short course such as this. So we present each subject like a tool to put in your own toolkit. You can then learn the techniques and skills in your own time after the course using the models, tools, links and further learning lists that we provide. Oh, sorry, there is some homework to do beforehand as well.

We demonstrate through games, exercises and story telling how each application or tool can be implemented, and we weave the whole together so each part leads to the next as part of a natural progression.

Why should I attend the course?

We cover, in a business risk management context, general management skills such as

- Risk in the context of it being a threat and / or an opportunity
- How to harness other internal activities to get the most out of risk management
- Tools for making risk management appealing to all of your audiences
- Monitoring and reporting risk management in a value added way
- Audit - its role, and how to maximise it
- Working out risk tolerance and risk appetite
- Ownership of risk and of risk controls
- Persuasion, negotiation, influencing, delegating
- Advanced selling techniques
- Leadership tools

What is the output from the course?

You come away with an action plan of how you are going to re-open those doors that have been closed to you, and how you are going to use your new tools and techniques to get greatest buy-in from the people you most want to influence. Previous delegates report that this course gave them new energy and confidence in taking risk management to the next stage in their organisations. All the course materials and work completed are sent to you on a CD Rom following the course and you get a certificate and CPD points.

When and where are you running the courses?

What is the timing for the course?

So you get two whole days' work with only one night away from home, day 1 starts at 10:30 and goes on until 6:00 pm. Day 2 starts at 08:30 and finishes at 3:45 pm.

What have people said about the course?

Here are some of the comments that people have made about the course;

- Overall very valuable exercise and established some momentum that we can build on
- I did have a good understanding of risk management to start with, but this course provided me with some additional tools and helped us to understand our own issues and process improvements needed
- The presenter facilitated learning well
- Group work on barriers good
- Strategic planning tool very good. Thank you!
- Exercises were great at illustrating tools and how risk management can be applied in areas such as recruitment and retention
- I particularly enjoyed the strategic planning tool and will be using this in my organisation
- The use of opportunity side of risk could be a useful selling factor
- Great course and a very experienced presenter who made what can be a very dry subject extremely interesting and stimulating
- Bow Tie looks like an excellent tool for unpicking risks
- Useful to put the example of risk in every day activities
- It was useful to talk about risk ranking collectively and the bow tie exercise was excellent
- Lots of interaction, group work, really energised
- Good to do learning review with relevance to different areas of work and life
- Overall really good and learned much from the training
